

These particles originate from the magnetosphere and solar wind and are directed by the Earth's magnetic field into the atmosphere.